Miss GK Australia 2006

What began with ten young women, from four different states, earlier this year came to a close on July 15, with one of these young women being crowned as Miss GK Australia 2006. The winning candidates from Victoria, Karla Magayanes, ACT, Laura Ann Barber, and Queensland, Beverly Pugliese, came together, at Castle Hill RSL, for this monumental event. Both candidates from NSW were also present at the event, awaiting the final counts to determine who would become Miss GK NSW 2006.

Miss GK Australia 2006 Karla Magayanes

The audience was warmly welcomed by the hosts for the evening Christine Stanley and Nathan Mari, who opened the night with the coronation of Miss GK NSW 2006. The two candidates for NSW, Eileen Racca and Jessica Jenkins, waited in anticipation for the final results of their fundraising ventures, while Christina Hampton, the reigning Miss GK NSW for 2005, took her final walk. Both girls were held in suspense as the results were announced, "...and the winner is Miss Jessica Jenkins". Jessica wore her crown with pride and had a smile that went from ear to ear as she took her first walk as Miss GK NSW 2006.

The suspense was over, but not for long. The opening for the coronation of Miss

Breakfast Forum I

Marayong Community Centre provided the perfect setting for the first Breakfast forum of 2006, held on the 1st July. Attendees of the forum were welcomed with a complimentary breakfast prepared by GK Youth, and were given the opportunity to mingle with members of GK Youth Sydney. A special appearance was made by Blacktown City Council member, Michelle Rowlands, who on behalf of the council contributed to the possibility of allowing the breakfast forum to be held at the centre.

The morning began with an introduction to what Gawad Kalinga was all about and its work towards eradicating poverty, not only in the Philippines, but around the world. The main topic, however, for the morning was about GKY GAT. The guests for the morning were treated to reflection videos of previous GAT's and were told of what to expect at both GKY GAT '07 and PNG GAT.

With PNG GAT looming in mid-September more volunteers are being sought to help in the work of GK. The numbers are climbing for those who wish to attend GKY GAT '07, but we are yet to reach our goal of 101 volunteers. Another breakfast forum will be held on September 9, so come along and bring your friends. You never know where the road will lead you.

Gone National

Over the past few months there has been planning and organizing for the GK Go National program. The aim of Go National was to establish GK Youth groups in all states and to see that the work of GK was continued by the youth all over Australia. So far we have gone to Canberra, Melbourne and Brisbane, and plan to go to Perth, Adelaide and Rock Hampton by the year-end. After being appointed leadership for the program, I had my doubts about whether we would succeed, but was proven wrong with every city we visited.

GK Youth Go National Mission 1: Canberra

A large number of GKY members volunteered to serve a very small group in Canberra in our first mission and my doubt in this work sky rocketed on that first Saturday morning. But what a success the Canberra mission was, with the Canberra members proving to us that even a small group can do so much. Personally, I fell in love with the CFC families in Canberra, in particular the Ambida family who hosted our event. I was in awe at how close and personal all their families were. To this day they continue to inspire me to be more loving to my family, and to strive to improve my relationships with them. Family comes first and it took a trip to Canberra for me to realise it. This unexpected lesson is only one of the many I learned in leading this program.

GK Youth Go National Mission 2: Melbourne

After the events in Canberra the Melbourne team was more prepared and confident. There were a greater number of participants in Melbourne and our message was well received by the group. The newly formed Melbourne GK Youth has since been very active, having weekly meetings and fellowships. This has greatly hyped all of us back in Sydney. I was inspired by the enthusiasm of the Sydney GK Youth, The message of Gawad Kalinga is something so sacred to them (us) and something they would go to the ends of the Earth to proclaim. It was a privilege being part of that team, and being part of the synergy we created.

GK Youth Go National Mission 3: Brisbane

Sunny Brisbane was the trip I looked forward to the most, obviously because of how I missed wearing shorts and t-shirts, the warm weather was just calling out my name! The Brisbane group was by far the most energetic group we had presented the program to. They truly inspired me with how creative and inventive they were. But what I took out from this mission was something else. One brother, who I became friends with, Ayel, showed me how much of an impact we can have on others. I learned that mission trips aren't only about the mission; we didn't only go on the missions to establish GK Youth. A very important part of going on a mission is establishing friendships. One thing that we need to remember is that the work of GK is the work of God and the work of CFC. Without community, fellowship and love, the work just isn't worth doing.

So this is one story from one person who has gone national, I'm sure the other volunteers who have gone on missions with me could share a lot more. With three other cities needing mission trips, what more can be learned and what more will God reveal. One thing is for sure, beyond a shadow of a doubt, that through this program, Australia is gathering more workers. Australia is rallying more soldiers. Australia will be providing a united front in this war against poverty for the "Battle of GK777" and beyond!!

GK PNG

Gawad Kalinga is going global. Papua New Guinea has embraced the ethos and values of Gawad Kalinga, where GK (Givim Kea as it is known in PNG) was launched in the National Capital District of Port Moresby in June of last year, with its first GK village residing in Gerehu Stage 6. By its first anniversary, 10 houses were completed in an area notorious for being a graveyard of stolen and carcassed vehicles. However, with the cooperation of previously rival clans and many neighbouring community members Gerehu Stage 6 was cleared of more than 100 abandoned vehicles and paved way for the construction of 15 houses, landscaped gardens and paths, a playground and a community gathering area. This is just a fraction of the enormous transformation happening in Gerehu Stage 6 – a place formerly feared by many, but now replaced by a peaceful and safe community.

Myself, Dikana - clan chief,
Fredney - journalist, Bimbo –
GK Mission worker, Tito Edgar –
President of GKPNG

The first anniversary of GK PNG was celebrated on the 3rd of June 2006, where visitors from Australia, including myself, along with the director of SVS Mart, Hidayat Hanafi (a major sponsor of GK Houses in Gerehu), Bishop Kerubim of Port Moresby, numerous guests, GK workers and caretaker teams celebrated with the homeowners of Gerehu Stage 6 in an elaborate but simple PNG style of celebration that included an early GK build.

Gerehu Stage 6 is just the beginning of a cascading transformation of community spirit and lifestyle, from shanties to colourful homes, from poverty to self-reliance and from a nation in despair to a nation full of hope. The work of Gawad Kalinga is definitely growing bigger and more communities have been embracing the values and spirit of working with the poor not just in the Philippines but worldwide.

An Opportunity to Consider

Gawad Kalinga Youth (GKY) in Melbourne has just launched its first ever Breakfast Forum for next year's GKY GAT. In a comfortable and cozy group, it was an opportunity for individuals to hear about and be inspired by the GK anti-poverty movement. For some it was their first time to learn about the work of GK, for others it was a valuable reminder of the social responsibility to help those suffering from extreme poverty in third world countries like the Philippines.

A question that was posed at the Breakfast Forum was: why spend $2000 to go to GAT when that money could be better spent donated to those in need? The question at first made a lot of sense; however I was reminded of the true purpose behind the GAT:

GK is a movement with an aim to change the mindset of the world on poverty and move away from short-lived and shallow compassion resulting in one-off contributions. Rather than encouraging this mindset, GAT provides people with the hard core exposure to extreme poverty in third world countries (significantly different to the poverty experienced in the first world in terms of extremities). By becoming exposed to this reality, the undeniable result is a deeper sense of social responsibility (rather than shallow compassion) embedded in the hearts and minds of people to truly make a difference in the world.

GKY GAT is in fact a blessing - a window into a more purposeful life. It is also an answer to those who feel a personal need to contribute to change in a physical sense, getting down and dirty to really show themselves that they've contributed to helping the poor.

A big thank you goes out to those who came to the Breakfast Forum (Saturday, 26 August, 2006 at Holy Eucharist Primary School). GK Youth looks forward to hearing about your endeavours to help the poor, especially through the work of GK. GK Youth in Melbourne will continue to spread the word of GK and extend the opportunity to attend next year and other future GKY GAT's. For those of you who couldn't make it, we look forward to seeing you next time, whether your interests are in attending the GKY GAT or simply to learn more about the GK movement.

In the spirit of GK: Less for self, more for others, enough for all.

GK Australia began with a bright and colourful dance performance, followed by each state's winning candidates presenting dances from different regions of the Philippines. The dances included the Igorot dance from Northern Luzon, the Habanera dance from Southern Luzon, the Pandanga (Bukid) dance from the Visayas and the Muslim dance from Mindanao.

Dylan Wilk was present at the coronation, as the guest speaker for the evening. He engaged the audience as he spoke of his experiences and involvements with GK, and as he told stories of various beneficiaries and benefactors he had met over the years. He also spoke of his admiration for the Filipino people, who he found were and enthusiastic and high spirited people "when you look with your heart at the Philippines, you see a truly wonderful people...Filipinos are not corrupt, Filipinos are not lazy, Filipinos are honest and loyal and hard working". Even within his stories and accolades, his message about Gawad Kalinga and its work stood out above everything else:

"the children and the grandchildren of even the poor in the Philippines today will have every chance to succeed...we're (Gawad Kalinga) bringing out the best in the poor, and the poor have stopped being criminals, they've stopped being drug addicts and alcoholics and they're becoming partners with us in building the nation... there's really something very special about Gawad Kalinga that it brings out the heroes in every Filipino..."

Dylan's talk was of great inspiration not only to the audience but also to the remaining candidates.

As the evening neared its end, the winning candidates from each state were presented to the audience one last time before voting was closed and the count began. Before the winner was announced, Nathan and Christine welcomed for the final time Rachel Franze, the winner of Miss GK Australia 2005. Rachel took her final walk as the reigning Miss GK, and then it was time. All the candidates were brought back onto the stage for the announcement of the winner for 2006. As Dylan came up to the stage to announce the results the room went silent and everyone held their breath. "The winner of Miss GK Australia 2006 is Karla Magayanes". There was an uproar of excitement as the crown was placed on Karla's head, and tears of joy were seen in her eyes as she took her first official walk as Miss GK Australia 2006.

After the excitement had calmed down and there was a break from all the photo opportunities, Karla was asked how it felt, her response was one of a true winner, graceful and humble:

"I really really wasn't expecting it...I'll represent Australia with pride...this is not just a crown, it's earned because we all worked for it and the real winner is Gawad Kalinga".

Over the past few months, the candidates from each state have been working determinedly, raising funds for GK, holding events such as dance parties, movie nights, dinners, auctions, sausage sizzles, salsa nights and much more. These young ladies showed tremendous dedication and gave so much of their time for a cause which they all believed so passionately in. At the end of the night, it was announced that the combined efforts of all the candidates raised a staggering amount of almost $90,000. This was an incredible result, and one that each candidate worked extremely hard for, and when the evening came to a close, they walked away from the auditorium feeling a sense of pride in what they had achieved and rightly so.

The outcome of Miss GK Australia 2006 superseded all expectations and was an immense success not only for the efforts of the candidates involved but also for Gawad Kalinga. We are all looking forward to Miss GK Australia 2007, and are certain that the result will be just as remarkable as was achieved this year.

“Gold kicked on the floor for 400 years will start looking like a piece of dirt, but the gold is still there, inside waiting for the opportunity to shine.” - Dylan Wilk

Xavier Brennan
GK Volunteer
GKY GAT 2006

Is it possible these days for young adults to have a passion for helping people?

I grew up in the world of Gen-X'ers, where cynicism was a religion and apathy a way of life. Seeing these young adults passionate about a cause that seemed so mind numbingly optimistic in its scope struck a chord within me that I didn't think I had, nor wanted. The older generation that was in attendance seemed also confused by these happy smiling teenagers, ready and willing to help those less fortunate than themselves in a country many had only heard about or who's only connection were dim childhood memories.

Miss GK Australia, held on the 15th of July, was “not a beauty contest, not a popularity contest, not a fundraising contest, but a way to build a nation”. The four finalists, Jessica Jenkins (NSW), Laura Ann Barber (ACT), Beverley Pugliese (QLD) and Karla Magayanes (VIC), had earned their way into the final circle not through their looks or the amazing way they could twirl a baton, nor even through answering the right questions such as “Is World Peace a good thing or a bad thing?” They progressed through by being able to raise money for GK, by holding and organising charity events. Garage sales, door knocking, dance parties, dinners, these girls organised and ran these events, not for their own sake but for those communities, which the monies raised will be used to rebuild. Because that is the message of the GK movement, rebuilding the Philippines, one house at a time.

One of the most inspirational speakers of the night was English born Dylan Wilk, whose sacrifice of his BMW enabled an entire village of houses to be built, deemed, not-surprisingly, as the BMW Village. Dylan Wilk spoke at length on the hidden treasure of the Filipino people, themselves. He believed that the Filipinos were a better people than they knew, and has given his time, money and even his homeland for the sake of building a better life for the people of his adopted country. Speaking about the Filipino people and its plight he used a quite stirring analogy. “Gold kicked on the floor for 400 years will start looking like a piece of dirt, but the gold is still there, inside waiting for the opportunity to shine.” He had quite a few of the older members of the audience in tears with his impassioned plea to let their children help those in need back in the motherland. He spoke not of blame for leaving the country to find a better way of life for their children, but of the love and sacrifice they endured to do so.

The Miss GK Australia coronation brought attention to the Filipinos, now living in Australia, the plight of their country. Not because they were unaware of the troubles that beset the Philippines, but because living day to day in a country such as Australia, you sometimes put what you perceive as the larger problems of the world aside for the sake of those daily issues. But as one of the volunteers, Xavier Brennan an Australian (of no Filipino descent whatsoever, who had volunteered to go to the Philippines in order to build houses along with others) made the point that sometimes that really isn't sufficient. “You have your job or uni, but sometimes that's just not enough to keep you going in a soulful way. With GK you can go and feel like you're making a difference.” And this was the recurring theme for all the people that seemed to be involved with the GK movement. Dylan Wilk, the erudite speaker of the night, said it best. “We [The youth of the Philippines] are tired of praying for this country. We [the youth] want to be the answer to this country's [the Philippines'] Prayers.”

This is the reason why the contestants were participating in Miss GK, this is why a legion of young adults had given their time and skills, free of charge to organise the event. And undoubtedly it is the reason why I am actually writing this article. Making a difference in our world is something these young adults seem to have embraced, and their view on the world is in definite contrast to the world weary cynicism

- The day before Miss GK Aus. Coronation, Dylan Wilk was a guest speaker at a corporate forum, whose attendees included the corporate partners of GK.
- GK Youth has been hard at work presenting GK to the greater community, where presentations were made to Patrician Brothers Blacktown and UTS.
- The Australian government has granted Tax Deductibility on donations made towards GK.
- A Korean night was held for potential '07 GATers, where there were Korean movies and food galore. It was a great way to allow the future GATers an opportunity to get to know each other.
- GK Youth Brisbane and Melbourne has been launched, thanks largely to the Sydney Go National Team, who volunteered their time and effort to initiate GK Youth nationwide.
- A GK Market Day was held recently in an effort to raise funds for GK, and there are plans to hold another Market Day in the near future.

We Are So Blessed

I was lucky enough to be a part of the 2005 SFC World GAT where God truly opened my eyes. He reminded me just how blessed I truly was. There He showed me how much I can give back to our less fortunate brothers and sisters and when I arrived back in Australia, I was rejuvenated to continue serving in GK Youth and to keep offering my time, talents and treasures to those in need.

So I was a bit puzzled when I found myself again at the GAT in 2006. I asked God "What would Your message be for me this time?"

It was during our immersion with the poor when I heard a clear answer to my question. My "GAT buddy", Janvier Miranda, and I spent a few days living a very simple a peaceful life with the Banatasa family in the GK Immaculate Concepcion Village in Loong. We did not have the daily comforts and luxuries that we easily took for granted, back in Australia, such as running water. Comparing our blessings to theirs, namely our income, hit the both of us like a ton of bricks. An even bigger shock was when we saw a brother and sister, about 4 and 5 years old, fetching water from a pump at the bottom of the hill to their house at the top of that same hill, so that they could fill up a 50L drum at home using only a pair of 2L Coke bottles each. Their parents were hard at work, in the local markets, each day and because they had no running water in their house, it was their task to do this daily so that the family would have water available to drink, for their showers and normal household activities such as washing the dishes. Our brothers and sisters do not deserve to live like this. They do not other person who have given themselves to helping the Filipino people deserve their prize. It's not a title, not a crown, not a bunch of flowers, their prize is knowing that they are making a difference, that unlike so many others, they have made this world a better world.

By Alain Sioson

have to. We can help because WE ARE SO BLESSED.

Throughout our stay in the village, God was constantly telling me His answer to my question. He kept saying to me "I want you to sacrifice more." Not only was He asking me to give more of the blessings I receive to the poor, He was also asking me to change for the better. He wanted me to change the way I looked at things, He wanted me to see the difference between a "need" and a "want". You see before I went to the Philippines, I already had a long detailed list of the things that I wanted for myself. I wanted a new set of "Bench Body" underwear, new pair of "Jag" jeans, "Polo" tops, etc. Notice that they were all brand names. I'm ashamed to say that all of these things, I already had. I just wanted new stuff.

At the last session of GAT, we spent some time reflecting on the message that God wanted us to take back home. He gave me two clear cut instructions. They were: "Take care of My people." and "Be My light."

God continues to trust me as a steward of His resources and is still counting on me to be an example. He is counting on me to be a light to those around me to live simply and humbly. I believe that the message I brought back was not just for me. It was for every single one of us.

WE ARE SO BLESSED. I pray that we can all start a change within ourselves. It is not just a "one time" decision. It is going to be a constant daily choice to LIVE SIMPLY SO THAT OTHERS MAY SIMPLY LIVE.

Basil Valdez

A Touch of Basil

Suspense and excitement was in the air, and a crowd of over 2000 awaited the highly anticipated performance of one of the most renowned Filipino talents. The night of the 19th of August, was one that many will remember, with the Hillsong Centre hosting the first official concert of Basil Valdez in Australia, all in the name of GK. His voice was as smooth as ever, and projected throughout the auditorium, not one ear could escape the magnificence of his performance. The entire audience, both young and old, found it difficult not to be entranced by his voice and songs, whether it was in English or in Tagalog.

Basil's performance was preceded by several Filipino-Australian groups such as the Youth For Christ Dancers, the Cherubim choir, Abide, the Good Shepherd Parish Filipino Choir and NVS. With each performance the crowd became ever more fervent, and when Basil entered the auditorium the crowd went wild with excitement. His performance was flawless, and the additional backup dancers that performed in his songs, Jamie, Kassandra and La Promenade, further enhanced the splendor of his performance. To say that the night was a success would be an understatement, it was so much more than that, not only for Basil but also for GK, with, no doubt, the audience taking home with them a greater awareness of the work and achievements of GK.

The night before his performance, I was fortunate enough to have an audience with Mr. Basil Valdez for several minutes. We spoke of his participation in GK and what he plans to do in the future, being part of the GK community.

What's your involvement with GK?

Nothing as of now, they just asked me to do this concert for them. I'm a personal friend of the GK Director, Tony Meloto, and we were in the same school, actually he was one year ahead of me and he asked if I could do this concert. Before I left Manila I went to visit an Australian GK Village in the Batasang Pambansa, this Australian village is where the poor people live, and I'm so impressed with what they've done there. So I think I'd really like to be involved in future projects.

If you become involved in GK, what would you like to do?

Well I was asking those people there, those who accompany me, and they were telling me "Basil for now we need a person to endorse Gawad Kalinga", and at the same time Tony was talking to me about mobilizing my batch-mates in Ateneo, the Jesuit school in Manila, to do something about his projects, so we really have to sit down and discuss it.

How do you think your future involvement with GK will affect you or your career?

I don't really have any foresight at the moment but I hope the Lord really guides me to what I have to do with Gawad Kalinga, because I've been involved with a lot of other groups before like Tahanan Walang Hagdan, which originated actually from Australia "House with No Steps", this is for our brothers and sisters who are paraplegics and quadriplegics, I was their ambassador and whenever I did a concert I would endorse them and we were able to raise 2 million in pesos in 2 years for their livelihood programs and if I will be asked by Gawad Kalinga, I would like to do something like that, to endorse GK and their projects and to basically perform for Gawad Kalinga. That's what I did for Tahanan Walang Hagdan before, all my performances were for them, they got a certain percentage out of all my performances and including my recordings.

You said you wanted to endorse, were you planning to do it just in the Philippines or go international?

If they ask me to, because I am based in Manila, but I just came back from the United States, I'm leaving again September/October for a series of concerts in the United States and Canada. So if I'll be able to sit down with Tony Meloto, I'd like to be able to really endorse, during those concerts, Gawad Kalinga.

For a man who spoke so gently, I was in awe of the sheer power, and yet comforting sound, of his voice. Spending those few minutes with him and being present at his concert will be a lasting memory in my mind.
